

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: The Personal and Public Politics of Militarizing Men	1
1 Gender and Militarization in the Soviet Union	15
2 Militarized Masculinity and State Leadership in the Russian-Chechen Wars	35
3 The Societal Crisis of Militarized Masculinity: Conscription, Economic Transformation, and the Russian-Chechen Wars	59
4 The Soldiers' Mothers Movement: Contesting and Reproducing Militarized Gender Roles	85
5 Veterans of the Chechen Wars: Questionable Warriors or a Model of Masculinity?	108
Conclusion: Masculinity, Soldiering, and War in Post-Soviet Russia	136
Notes	145
References	195
Index	219