Defending the Public's Enemy The Life and Legacy of Ramsey Clark

Lonnie T. Brown, Jr.

Defending the Public's Enemy is the first book to explore the enigmatic and perplexing life and legal career of U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark. Clark's life and work were enmeshed with some of the most notable people and events of the 1960s: Martin Luther King Jr., the Watts Riots, the Voting Rights Act, the Black Panthers, Muhammad Ali. Clark worked tirelessly, especially to secure the civil rights of black Americans. Upon entering the private sector, the former insider became one of his government's staunchest critics, providing legal defense to internationally-despised figures, alleged terrorists, reputed Nazi war criminals, and brutal dictators.

The provocative life chronicled in Defending the Public's Enemy personifies the contradictions at the heart of American political history, and our ambivalent relationship with dissenters and marginalized groups, as well as those who embody a fiercely independent revolutionary spirit.

The Cult of the Constitution Mary Anne Franks

The Cult of the Constitution reveals how deep fundamentalist strains in both conservative and liberal American thought keep the Constitution in the service of white male supremacy.

Franks shows that as religious fundamentalists read their sacred scriptures, constitutional fundamentalists read the Constitution selectively and self-servingly. The worship of guns, speech, and the Internet in the name of the Constitution has blurred the boundaries between conduct and speech and between veneration and violence. The Cult of the Constitution lays bare the dark, antidemocratic consequences of constitutional fundamentalism and urges readers to take the Constitution seriously, not selectively.

"Uncompromisingly critical, Franks challenges both liberal and conservative views of the Bill of Rights in the name of equality...agree or disagree with Franks's conclusions, her arguments require attention."

Our Non-Christian Nation

How Atheists, Satanists, Pagans, and Others Are Demanding Their Rightful Place in Public Life

Jay Wexler

America is now home to an ever-larger number of people who identify with no religion at all. These non-Christians have increasingly been demanding their full participation in public life. The law is on their side, but sometime their attempts are met with suspicion or outright hostility. In Our Non-Christian Nation, Jay Wexler travels the country to engage the non-Christians who have called on us to maintain our ideals of inclusivity and diversity. With his characteristic sympathy and humor, he introduces us to the Summum and their Seven Aphorisms, a Wiccan priestess who would place a pagan holiday wreath in City Hall, and other determined champions of free religious expression. As Wexler urges, anyone who cares about pluralism, equality, and fairness must support a public square filled with a variety of religious and non-religious voices. The stakes are nothing short of long-term social peace.

Ballot Blocked

The Political Erosion of the Voting Rights Act

Jesse H. Rhodes

Over the past five decades, both Democrats and Republicans in Congress have consistently voted to expand the protections offered by the Voting Rights Act. And yet, the administration of the VRA has become more fragmented, and judicial interpretation of its terms has become much less generous.

Ballot Blocked argues that conservatives adopt a paradoxical strategy in which they acquiesce to expansive voting rights protections in Congress (where decisions are visible and easily traceable) while simultaneously narrowing the scope of federal enforcement via administrative and judicial maneuvers (which are less visible and harder to trace). Over time, this strategy has enabled a conservative Supreme Court to exercise preponderant influence over the scope of federal enforcement.

“Bold and richly detailed. Rhodes provides timely and crucial new insights.”

Borders of Belonging

Struggle and Solidarity in Mixed-Status Immigrant Families

Heide Castañeda

Borders of Belonging investigates the impact of immigration policies and practices not only on undocumented migrants, but also on their family members, some of whom possess a form of legal status. Heide Castañeda reveals the trauma, distress, and inequalities that occur daily, alongside the stratification of particular family members' access to resources like education, employment, and health care. She also paints a vivid picture of the resilience, resistance, creative responses, and solidarity between parents and children, siblings, and other kin. Castañeda's innovative ethnography combines fieldwork with individuals and family groups to reveal the myriad experiences of mixed-status families as they navigate the emotional, social, political, and medical difficulties that inevitably arise when at least one family member lacks legal status. This book presents a portentous vision of how the further encroachment of immigration enforcement would affect millions of mixed-status families throughout the country.

Migrant Crossings
Witnessing Human Trafficking in the U.S.

Annie Isabel Fukushima

Migrant Crossings examines the experiences and representations of Asian and Latina/o migrants trafficked in the United States into informal economies and service industries. Through sociolegal and media analysis of court records, press releases, law enforcement campaigns, film representations, theatre performances, and the law, Annie Isabel Fukushima interrogates how migrants legally cross into visibility, through frames of victimhood, criminality, citizenship, and legality. Fukushima invites readers to deeply interrogate what it means to bear witness to migration in these migratory times—and what such migrant crossings mean for subjects who experience violence during or after their crossing.

Skimmed
Breastfeeding, Race, and Injustice
Andrea Freeman

Skimmed tells the heartbreaking tale of America's first identical quadruplets, their rise to fame and use as advertising symbols, and the damage done to them and generations of African American families. Relating the sisters' story, Andrea Freeman invites readers into the fraught history of how the seemingly simple task of feeding America's youngest citizens is awash in social, legal, and cultural inequalities.

Despite the high cost of baby formula and the health advantages of breast milk, Black women have the lowest breastfeeding rates in the nation. Freeman uncovers how aspects of history, law, corporate power, culture, and the media have played a part in the routine dispossession of Black women's choice of how to nourish their babies since slavery. Skimmed exposes how American laws and policies affect the nutritional lives of Black families from birth and proposes effective and immediate solutions for a healthier and more just future.

Rules, Paper, Status
Migrants and Precarious Bureaucracy in Contemporary Italy

Anna Tuckett

Drawing on in-depth fieldwork in Italy, one of Europe's biggest receiving countries, Rules, Paper, Status reveals how migration actually plays out on the ground. Anna Tuckett highlights the complex processes of inclusion and exclusion produced through encounters with immigration law. The statuses of "legal" or "illegal," which media and political accounts use as synonyms for "good" and "bad," are not created by practices of border-crossing, but rather through legal and bureaucratic processes within borders devised by governing states. Taking migrants' interactions with immigration regimes as her starting point, Tuckett argues that successfully navigating Italian immigration bureaucracy requires and induces culturally specific modes of behavior.

"A must-read for immigration scholars and anyone interested in the day-to-day workings of street-level bureaucrats and the myriad ways they make law and, in the process, transform immigrants into 'cultural citizens.'"

Emptied Lands

A Legal Geography of Bedouin Rights in the Negev

Alexandre Kedar, Ahmad Amara, and Oren Yiftachel

Emptied Lands investigates the protracted legal, planning, and territorial conflict between the settler Israeli state and indigenous Bedouin citizens over traditional lands in southern Israel/Palestine to place this dispute in historical, legal, geographical, and international-comparative perspectives. The authors reveal that through manipulative use of Ottoman, British and Israeli laws, the state has constructed its own version of terra nullius. Yet, the indigenous property and settlement system still functions, creating an ongoing resistance to the Jewish state. Emptied Lands critically examines several key land claims, court rulings, planning policies and development strategies, offering alternative local, regional, and international routes for justice.

"A remarkable multidisciplinary feat, this book provides an essential understanding of settler colonialism."

Karman

A Brief Treatise on Action, Guilt, and Gesture

Giorgio Agamben
Translated by Adam Kotsko

What does it mean to be responsible for our actions? In this brief and elegant study, Giorgio Agamben traces our most profound moral intuitions back to their roots in the sphere of law and punishment. Moral accountability, human free agency, and even the very concept of cause and effect all find their origin in the language of the trial, which Western philosophy and theology both transform into the paradigm for all of human life. In his search for a way out of this destructive paradigm, Agamben draws not only on minority opinions within the Western tradition but engages at length with Buddhist texts and concepts for the first time. In sum, Karman deepens and rearticulates some of Agamben's core insights while breaking significant new ground.

The Economic Approach to Law, Third Edition

Thomas J. Miceli

The third edition of this seminal textbook is thoroughly updated to include recent cases and the latest scholarship, with particular attention paid to torts, contracts, property rights, and the economics of crime. A new chapter organization, ideal for quarter- or semester-long courses, strengthens the book's focus on unifying themes in the field. As Miceli tells a cohesive, analytical "story" about law from a distinctly economic perspective, exercises and problems encourage students to deepen their knowledge. A companion website with a full suite of resources for both students and professors is available at sup.org/economiclaw.

"Miceli's carefully written text is rich with many well-selected examples. It covers the basic areas of law—torts (accidents), contracts, crime, property, and litigation—as well as the subject of antitrust, and furnishes a valuable guide to students for further reading. I know of no better book for its intended audience."

The Politics of Love in Myanmar

LGBT Mobilization and Human Rights as a Way of Life

Lynette J. Chua

The Politics of Love in Myanmar offers an intimate ethnographic account of a group of LGBT activists before, during, and after Myanmar's post-2011 political transition. Lynette J. Chua explores how these activists devoted themselves to, and fell in love with, the practice of human rights and how they were able to empower queer Burmese to accept themselves, gain social belonging, and reform discriminatory legislation and law enforcement. Informed by interviews with activists from all walks of life, Chua details the vivid particulars of the LGBT activist experience founding a movement first among exiles and migrants and then in Myanmar's cities, towns, and countryside.

"Beautifully written and brilliantly theorized, the book is highly recommended reading for scholars interested in human rights, legal mobilization, social movements, and LGBT politics."

Branding Humanity

Competing Narratives of Rights, Violence, and Global Citizenship

Amal Hassan Fadlalla

The Save Darfur movement gained an international following, garnering widespread international attention to this remote Sudanese territory. But how do local activists and those throughout the Sudanese diaspora in the United States situate their own notions of rights, nationalism, and identity? Based on interviews with Sudanese social actors, activists, and their allies in the United States, the Sudan, and online, Branding Humanity traces the global story of violence and the remaking of Sudanese identities. Amal Hassan Fadlalla examines how activists contest, reshape, and reclaim the stories of violence emerging from the Sudan and their identities as migrants. Branding Humanity helps us see beyond the oft-monolithic international branding of conflict. Fadlalla asks readers to consider how national and transnational debates about violence circulate, shape, and re-territorialize ethnic identities, disrupt meanings of national belonging, and rearticulate notions of solidarity and global affiliations.

The Grip of Sexual Violence in Conflict

Feminist Interventions in International Law

Karen Engle

Through an account of feminist engagement with international law over the past twenty-five years, this book argues that sexual violence in conflict was not as obvious a focus for transnational feminism as it may appear to be in hindsight.

Beginning with the attention to wartime rape in the 1990s during the conflict in the former Yugoslavia, Karen Engle traces feminist advocacy and international legal support for ending violence against women. As transnational feminists began to pay attention to sexual violence in conflict, Engle reveals they often did so at the cost of attention to other issues, including the anti-militarism; critiques of economic maldistribution, and imperialism and cultural essentialism by feminists from the global South. Engle argues that these feminist commitments were not merely deprioritized, but undermined, and she asks readers to reconsider the inevitability of today's international feminist norms.

When Misfortune Becomes Injustice
Evolving Human Rights Struggles for Health and Social Equality

Alicia Ely Yamin

When Misfortune Becomes Injustice surveys the last thirty years of health, economic, and social rights advancement within the international human rights community. Alicia Ely Yamin reflects on her firsthand experience as an academic, practitioner, and advocate to provide readers with a careful analysis of the points of intersection and friction between the fields of law, public health, and economics and development.

When Misfortune Becomes Injustice tells a story of extraordinary progress with respect to the right to health, including how traditional forms of tyranny were curbed, and how new discourses of equality, the welfare state, and inclusive societies were formed. Yamin also shows that the possibilities and political space necessary to advance egalitarian health rights are shrinking and require more attention to growing inequality and building more diverse strategies for resistance and social transformation.

Letters to the Contrary
*A Curated History of the UNESCO
Human Rights Survey*

Edited and Introduced by
Mark Goodale,
Foreword by Samuel Moyn

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) has long served as the foundation for the protection of human rights around the world. Historians and human rights scholars have claimed that the UDHR was influenced by UNESCO's 1947–48 global survey of intellectuals, theologians, and cultural and political leaders, a survey that supposedly revealed a universal consensus on human rights.

Based on meticulous archival research, Letters to the Contrary revises and enlarges the conventional understanding of UNESCO's human rights survey. Mark Goodale uncovers a historical record filled with letters and responses that were omitted, polite refusals to respond, and outright rejections of the universal human rights ideal. In collecting, annotating, and analyzing these responses, Goodale reveals an alternative history deeply connected to the ongoing life of human rights in the twenty-first century.

Remote Freedoms
Politics, Personhood and Human Rights in Aboriginal Central Australia

Sarah E. Holcombe

Remote Freedoms investigates how universal human rights are understood, practiced, negotiated, and challenged in concert and in conflict with Indigenous rights. Moving between communities, government, regional NGOs, and international UN forums, Sarah E. Holcombe addresses how the notion of rights plays out within the distinctive and ambivalent sociopolitical context of Australia, focusing specifically on Indigenous Anangu women and their experiences of violence. Engaging in a translation of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights into the local Pintupi-Luritja vernacular and observing various Indigenous interactions with law enforcement and domestic violence outreach programs, Holcombe reveals how, in the post-colonial Australian context, human rights are double-edged. They enforce assimilation to a neoliberal social order at the same time that they empower and enfranchise the Indigenous citizen as a political actor.

Justice for Some
Law and the Question of Palestine
Noura Erakat

Justice for Some offers a new approach to understanding the Palestinian struggle for freedom, told through the power and control of international law. Focusing on key junctures—from the Balfour Declaration in 1917 to present-day wars in Gaza—Noura Erakat shows how the strategic deployment of law has shaped current conditions. Over the past century, the law has done more to advance Israel's interests than the Palestinian's. But, Erakat argues, this outcome was never inevitable. Law is politics, and its meaning and application depend on the political intervention of states and people alike. Within the law, change is possible, and international law can serve the cause of freedom when it is mobilized in support of a political movement.

"A radical rethinking of the role of law and legal advocacy in the struggle for Palestinian rights. Brilliant, inspiring, coldly realistic—and hopeful."

An Introduction to the Legal Systems of Europe and Latin America, Fourth Edition

John Henry Merryman and Rogelio Pérez-Perdomo

Designed for the general reader and students of law, this is a concise history and analysis of the civil law tradition, which is dominant in most of Europe, all of Latin America, and many parts of Asia, Africa, and the Middle East. The fourth edition is fully updated to include the latest developments in the field and to correct and update historical details gleaned from newly-published research on Roman and Medieval law. Judge and Punish
The Penal State on Trial
Geoffroy de Lagasnerie

Geoffroy de Lagasnerie spent years sitting in on trials, watching as individuals were judged and sentenced for violent crimes. His experience led to this original reflection on the penal state, power, and violence that identifies a paradox in the way justice is exercised. In order to pronounce a judgment, a trial must construct an individualizing story of actors and their acts; but in order to punish, each act between individuals must be transformed into an aggression against society as a whole, against the state itself. Combining narratives of real trials with theoretical analysis, Judge and Punish shows that juridical institutions are not merely a response to crime. The criminal trial, a magnifying mirror, reveals our true condition as political subjects.

"This groundbreaking work asks the big, penetrating questions that will shape the future of justice systems throughout the Western world."

Unequal Profession
Race and Gender in Legal Academia

Meera E. Deo

This book is the first formal, empirical investigation into the law faculty experience using a distinctly intersectional lens, examining both the personal and professional lives of law faculty members.

Comparing the professional and personal experiences of women of color professors with white women and white men faculty from assistant professor through dean emeritus, Unequal Profession explores how the race and gender of individual legal academics affects not only their individual and collective experience, but also legal education as a whole. Drawing on quantitative and qualitative empirical data, Meera E. Deo reveals how race and gender intersect to create profound implications, presenting unique challenges as well as opportunities to improve educational and professional outcomes in legal education. She brings the experiences of diverse faculty to life and proposes a number of mechanisms to increase diversity within legal academia.

How to Be Sort of Happy in Law School

Kathryne M. Young

Over 40,000 new students enter America's law schools each year. Each new crop experiences startlingly high rates of depression, anxiety, fatigue, and dissatisfaction.

In a book packed with insights from surveys and interviews with over 1,000 law students, lawyer-turned-sociologist Kathryn M. Young offers a very different take from previous books about law school survival. Instead of assuming her readers should all aspire to law-review-and-big-firm notions of success, Young teaches students how to approach law school on their own terms: how to tune out the drumbeat of oppressive expectations and conventional wisdom to create a new breed of law school experience altogether. Bursting with warmth, realism, and a touch of firebrand wit, this book equips law students with much-needed wisdom for thriving during those three crucial years.

"A big-hearted look at what can be a cold-hearted time. A must-read for the young lawyers in your orbit."

Dangerous Leaders
How and Why Lawyers Must Be Taught to Lead

Anthony C. Thompson

Dangerous Leaders exposes the risks and results of leaving lawyers unprepared to lead. It provides law schools, law students, and the legal profession with the leadership tools and models to build a better foundation of leadership acumen. Anthony C. Thompson draws from his fifteen years of experience in global executive education for Fortune 100 companies and his experience as a law professor to chart a path forward for better leadership instruction within the legal academy. Using vivid, real-life case studies, Thompson explores catastrophic political, business, and legal failures that have occurred precisely because of a lapse in leadership from those with legal training. He maintains that these practices are chronic leadership failures that could have been avoided and proposes a fundamental rethinking of legal education. Dangerous Leaders imparts invaluable tools and lessons to best equip current and future generations of legal leaders.

Anchor Babies and the Challenge of Birthright Citizenship

Leo R. Chavez

Leo R. Chavez explores the question of birthright citizenship and of citizenship in the United States writ broadly, to counter the often-hyperbolic claims surrounding so-called anchor babies. He considers how this term is used as a political dog whistle, how changes in the legal definition of citizenship have affected the children of immigrants over time, and, ultimately, how U.S.-born citizens still experience trauma if they live in families with undocumented immigrants. By examining this pejorative term in its political, historical, and social contexts, Chavez calls upon us to exorcise it from public discourse and work toward building a more inclusive nation.

"Analytically sharp, powerfully written, and cogently argued, this important book is essential reading for every American."

Living Emergency
Israel's Permit Regime in the Occupied West Bank

Yael Berda

In 1991, the Israeli government introduced emergency legislation canceling the general exit permit that allowed Palestinians to enter Israel. Today, Israel's permit regime for Palestinians is one of the world's most extreme and complex apparatuses for population management. In Living Emergency, Yael Berda brings readers inside the permit regime, and offers a first-hand account of how the Israeli secret service, government, and military civil administration control the Palestinian population.

"Living Emergency is a groundbreaking analysis of the bureaucracy of occupation. And in Yael Berda, this intricate and obfuscated bureaucracy has met its match: Her meticulous research and brilliant insights call on us all to acknowledge the ways in which the contemporary rule of officials has developed across the globe."

Who Owns the News?

A History of Copyright

Will Slauter

You can't copyright facts, but is news a category unto itself? Without legal protection for the "ownership" of news, what incentive does a news organization have to invest in producing quality journalism that serves the public good? This book explores the intertwined histories of journalism and copyright law in the United States and Great Britain, revealing how shifts in technology, government policy, and publishing strategy have shaped the media landscape.

Publishers have long sought to treat news as exclusive to protect their investments against copying or "free riding." But over the centuries, arguments about the vital role of newspapers and the need for information to circulate have made it difficult to defend property rights in news. Beginning with the earliest printed news publications and ending with the Internet, Will Slauter traces these countervailing trends, offering a fresh perspective on debates about copyright and efforts to control the flow of news.

The Color of Creatorship

Intellectual Property, Race, and the Making of Americans

Anjali Vats

The Color of Creatorship examines how copyright, trademark, and patent discourses work together to form American ideals around race, citizenship, and property.

Working through key moments in intellectual property history since 1790, Anjali Vats reveals that even as they have seemingly evolved, American understandings of who is a creator and who is an infringer have remained remarkably racially conservative and consistent over time. Vats historicizes the figure of the citizen-creator, the white male maker who was incorporated into the national ideology as a key contributor to the nation's moral and economic development. The Color of Creatorship argues that once anti-racist activists grapple with the underlying racial structures of intellectual property law, they can better advocate for strategies that resist the underlying drivers of racially disparate copyright, patent, and trademark policy.
